

TWO YOUNG BURGLARS CAUGHT

HAD LOWERED A ROPE THROUGH T. A. COLBY'S SKYLIGHT.

Mr. Colby, Awakened, Fires His Revolver and a Special Patrolman Nabs the Men as They Descend From Roof—Evidence That They Planned Other Robberies.

Two young burglars were captured by a special policeman at Hancock street and Tompkins avenue, Brooklyn, early yesterday morning. Since Albert C. Latimer was killed in a mysterious manner in his home on Hancock street near Tompkins avenue several years ago the residents have not put much reliance on the police, but many of them have hired special patrolmen to guard their homes at night. It was one of these specials, Henry O'Connell, who captured the burglars yesterday.

Thomas A. Colby, a manufacturer, who lives at 283 Hancock street, retired early on Friday night. His family are in the country and he was alone in the house. Early in the morning he heard a crash in the upper part of the house. Jumping from bed, he grabbed a revolver and turned on the electric light. Then he heard scuffling over the roof. Opening the window, Mr. Colby fired one shot in the air.

Special Patrolman O'Connell, who was in the vicinity, heard the shot and ran to the Colby house. Mr. Colby explained, O'Connell hastened to Hancock street and Tompkins avenue and a few seconds later two suspicious looking men left the apartment house at that point. He covered them with his revolver and rapped for assistance. After a time Policeman Kelly of the Gates avenue station arrived and took charge of one of the men.

At the station house the prisoners said they were Frank Schack, 19 years old, of 1372 Avenue A, Manhattan, and George Rainer, 20 years old, of Montreal. From papers in their possession it was shown that they intended to rob not only Mr. Colby's house, but also the house two doors above. They had broken the glass in the skylights in both houses. It was after they had broken the glass and had lowered a knotted rope that they had accidentally knocked down some of the plaster and thereby awakened Mr. Colby.

Mr. Colby said subsequently that he was sorry that he had turned on the electric light and frightened the men away. He said he was in a mood to have shot both men and was sorry that he did not have an opportunity.

The two men had reached the roof by forcing an entrance into the apartment house on the corner. Then going to the roof, it was easy to walk along until they came to the Colby house. Yesterday morning when the roofs were searched a jimmy and several candles were found near the skylight on Mr. Colby's house. The knotted rope also had been left dangling through the skylight.

In the Gates avenue police court yesterday both men denied that they had been on the roof of Mr. Colby's house. They said they were in the vicinity expecting to meet some person, but they were unable to tell who they had expected to meet.

While in court a boy tried to hand a letter to Schack. It was taken by one of the court attendants. The letter said that the writer would get a lawyer for Schack and for him not to worry, and that he would go to Schack's house and get his coat and pawn it so that he could pay the bail.

The boy said he was Martin Hutchinson. He was held for examination.

The two young burglars were committed to jail, after which they were taken to the State street headquarters, where their pictures were taken for the rogues' gallery.

DISGORGED OR GO TO JAIL.

Urbach's Story of $40,000 Diamond Robbery Pronounced Incredible.

An opinion handed down by Francis K. Pendleton, recently appointed Corporation Counsel, is that Solomon Urbach should make good for $40,000 worth of diamonds or go to jail for contempt of court. Urbach, at one time—a very short time—a dealer in diamonds at 47 Maiden lane, caused amusement in the bankruptcy court a little over a year ago by his explanation of how he lost $40,000 worth of diamonds while sleeping on a train bound for Baltimore. Also the fact that Mr. Urbach, who posed as a diamond expert, picked out a $20 assortment of cut glass in the Federal court as being between $20,000 and $40,000 worth of diamonds added to the gaiety of the Federal Building at the time.

Mr. Pendleton was appointed a special master to take testimony and report an opinion in the matter of Urbach and his missing diamonds.

Urbach had been in the diamond business just five months when he reported the loss. The diamonds had been obtained on credit from Maiden lane dealers. They said that Urbach had transferred the diamonds and had manufactured the robbery tale to avoid being held responsible. The creditors, through their lawyers, Hays & Herstein, filed a petition in bankruptcy against Urbach, and Job Hedges was appointed receiver. Then the creditors set forth that they feared that Urbach would flee the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court and had him arrested. He furnished $15,000 bail.

Urbach's tale was that on the night of September 10, 1906, he had made a trip to Baltimore and had left his $40,000 worth of diamonds and his watch under his pillow. Although it was his first experience on a sleeping car, he said, he slept so soundly that he didn't notice when somebody took his watchcoat, containing the diamonds and his watch, from under his head.

Mr. Pendleton says in his report: "On the whole, I cannot come to any other conclusion than that the story of the loss is too incredible and improbable to be believed and I am convinced that it is only a fabrication concocted in an effort to defraud his creditors and that the order asked for should be granted."

Urbach has 20 days in which to make good the loss.

Miss Ronaldson Killed Herself in Precisely the Same Manner—They Were Friends.

The body of Miss Laura W. Ronaldson, who killed herself on Thursday night in her apartments at 117th street and Amsterdam avenue, was shipped to Lewistown, Pa., shortly before noon yesterday. This was in accordance with the orders of Dr. Charles Ritz of Lewistown, an uncle of the dead woman.

Up to a late hour last night no one had put in an appearance to claim the effects of the young woman and they were still in the apartment. So was the photograph of a young man in the uniform of a Second Lieutenant of artillery in the army. Miss Ronaldson had many photographs in her rooms. There were two of Robert Loraine, the actor. They were ordinary photographs that the young woman had bought and were not wrapped up in any way.

Developed yesterday that Miss Ronaldson had been a friend of Miss Mary Gallaway, who killed herself in her apartments in the Hotel Saville, Twenty-third street and Madison avenue, on September 9, 1905. Miss Gallaway was the daughter of Robert M. Gallaway, president of the Merchants National Bank and trustee in many financial institutions.

According to Mrs. A. D. Jenkins, who lives at 413 West 118th street, just around the corner from the hotel where Miss Ronaldson killed herself, the latter had often spoken of Miss Gallaway's death and seemed to brood over it. Both young women ended their lives by shooting through the mouth. Another noticeable fact, is about the two cases is that neither of the young women left a note or word that would explain the act.

A CALL TO IRISH-AMERICANS.

They Are Forming a Grand New Political Organization in Brooklyn.

A new political organization under the name of the Irish-American Civic League is being formed in Brooklyn and it is expected that it will be in shape to participate actively in the approaching campaign.

One of its proclaimed purposes is "to induce all Irish-Americans of Kings county to take an active interest in the politics and issues of the day, separate and apart from any party, and to afford them that protection and consideration which they have not secured through affiliation with other political parties."

The league is to be absolutely independent of any existing political party, but the members are not compelled to relinquish their connection with other political parties. Branches are to be organized in each assembly district and delegates elected from each to a county committee, which is to be the governing body of the league.

With a view to preventing the possibility of a political boss appearing on the scene the county committee is not to have a regular president, a chairman being chosen at each meeting. So far the names of the projectors of the movement have not been disclosed.
